Live your dream and don't pay so much it kills you.

Fly in 2 hour outpost camp in Northern Ontario where the moose are big and the view is spectacular. There are many moose hunts in southern Ontario which are easy access and there for the moose quality is not near what it is far north where limited access allows the moose average age to be 5 years older than the ones in Southern Ontario. Bulls with spread of 45-52 are quite common to bring into camp although there are always bigger ones out there in the thick spruce cover. Float plains make the transportation chores much easier with your trophy.

To provide an economic hunt in every way possible the outfitter allows you to purchase your own food rather than him buying for you and making a costly mistake as to what you like to eat. You will drive to the outfitters location in Ontario and then it is off into the wild blue yonder north 200 miles in 2 hours to the Canadian outpost that requires a float plane to get there and of course land. This limited access is what provides quality moose.

Hunts run an 80% success rate with the option to pass on bulls and other enjoying the magnificent fishing at the outpost.
