Hunt ID: NV-MDeerLionSheepElkAntelopeTurkey-All-Fallon-NO-Rob

Welcome To Nevada!

This outfitter has guided and DIY hunts plus pack trip drop camps. This is the only outfitter I know of that will bridge the gap between guided and DIY by having a scouting trip with you prior to your DIY Hunt!

Our Outfitter is located between Fallon and Austin, right in the heart of big game country. The area is composed of a wide variety of terrain from rim rock mountaintops to sagebrush-covered flats. With the desire to introduce young people to the outdoors and the willingness to tailor trips to meet our client's individual needs. Time and clientele has built him a reliable and reputable business. He has everything you are looking for, from trophy animals to great accommodations.

Everything You Need!

This Outfitter provides a "Quality" service. He is designed to accommodate the hunter with lodging, meals, and field transportation, which include: horseback riding, all terrain vehicles, 4wheel drive vehicles, and or backpacking. Transportation depends on the hunter, current weather, and terrain. He look forward to providing you with personalized service, highly knowledgeable and experienced guides, and the "very best" equipment available to make your hunt with us a memorable hunt of a lifetime. He takes great pride in being able to provide our hunters with a hunt they will not soon forget.

Many Hunts to Choose From!

Our services include guided Mule Deer, Elk, Antelope, Nelson Bighorn, Rocky Mountain Bighorn, California Bighorn Sheep, Mountain Lions, Predators, Turkey, Goose, and Duck Hunts...plus Fishing. We are licensed and insured to hunt all of Nevada; we also hold various permits for the Sheldon National Wildlife Refuge, BLM, and Forest Service. With permission to hunt various private properties we can offer just that much more to our clients.

If you don't see the type of hunt that you or your group are looking for, we can custom tailor a hunt for you or your group. Although we don't guarantee a kill, our hunts are strictly fair chase... the "real thing". Above all, go on a hunt with a positive attitude, with the outlook that you are going to have a great time, meet some new friends, see some awesome country, and experience a quality hunt.

Sheep in Nevada are typically a once in a lifetime tag, although there are the lucky ones who draw again. With having some of the best sub-guides in the state who share the same hard working ethics and knowledge of big game your satisfaction is our goal.

While on your hunt, pack trip or ATV ride you will see some of the most spectacular scenery in Nevada, so prepare for a trip of a lifetime.

Not Provided By Outfitters: Tags, license fees, firearm, ammo., personal items, sleeping bag, meat processing, and alcohol.

 Recommend For Taxidermist **

We have two taxidermists that we work with exclusively, this means a quicker return time on your trophy, and the quality you expect.

Wilderness Hunts

We offer some of the best wilderness hunting in Nevada. During the hunt you can find Elk, Mountain Lions, Sheep and Mule Deer roaming the landscape.

We offer specialized wilderness pack trips by horseback; specifically in the Alta Toquima (Mt. Jefferson), Arc Dome, Table Mountain, and the Santa Rosa's. These are Wilderness areas in Nevada hunt units 171-173, 161-164 and 051.

We offer Outfitted and Non-outfitted drop camps. All of our drop camps are located in the back country, best accessed by horseback. These are camps located in excellent Elk, Deer and Sheep country. The terrain located around our camps is rugged, requiring hunters to be in excellent condition.

Our Non-outfitted drop camps include: 1 riding horse and 1 pack horse per person with a 150 lb max for your gear. We will check in via phone every 3 days and all game will be packed out to your vehicle.

Our Outfitted drop camps include: tent, wood stove, firewood readily available, cookware and utensils, cots, lanterns, propane cook stoves and propane, cooking and dining tables. Each camp is checked every 3 days via phone, and all game will be packed out to your vehicle.

We offer 3 different Non-Guided Drop Camps:

We have been in business since 1999 and hold permits to conduct business on public land through the Forest Service - Austin/Tonopah Districts, Santa Rosa District as well as the Sheldon National Wildlife Refuge, BLM statewide. Licensed with the Nevada Department of Wildlife and insured.

Bighorn Sheep Hunting

Nevada's Bighorn sheep are the most sought after tag in the state and country. With having 3 different species (Desert, California and Rocky Mountain) Nevada has a lot to offer. With tags being regulated we are able to produce some amazing sheep. We at Nevada Outfitters are committed to our client's satisfaction, with a 100% success rate and our Desert average being 162 4/8 and our California being 157 Boone and Crocket.

Nevada is a draw state; all Bighorn sheep tags are distributed this way, with the exception of the 3 Heritage tags that are auctioned to the highest bidder. If you would like to bid on these tags we can make all the necessary arrangements. The successful bidder may hunt statewide and two months earlier, with the monies going into the Heritage Trust Account it is then used for projects that will benefit the game species and all sportsmen.

Elk Hunting

Elk is one of Nevada's coveted tags, and with the herds increasing, conditions are at an all time high. You will want to have one of Nevada Outfitters' experienced guides to assist you on your hunt.

Year after year, the state of Nevada produces some of the finest bulls in the world. Our guides are experienced and spend many hours scouting high and low for these rare, trophy bull elk.

Mountain Lion Hunting

Nevada Outfitters also offers predator hunts. We believe in keeping the predator population down so that our game population will rise. In the past few years, the mountain lions have become a huge problem bringing down the herd sizes. The biggest problem we have seen is in the mule deer, which is what they seem to prey on the most. This makes it difficult to harvest trophy muley's because there are so few of them. If this problem continues there will be no such thing as a 200 B&C mule deer, So we make it our mission to control the predator.

We also offer hunts for coyote, ground squirrels, and all other varmint.

Mule Deer Hunting

While trophy mule deer numbers have been off a bit lately, Nevada still has some of the biggest bucks in the West. Limited tags and limited hunters have allowed some of our hunting areas to grow old, big bucks.

Summer Trips

Come and enjoy the breathtaking beauty of the Nevada Wilderness. You will enjoy the beauty by horse back as we make our way up the mountains to our home away from home.

Once we arrive you can look forward to a very relaxed atmosphere. You can spend your day hiking, fishing in one of the upper beaver ponds or streams, horse back riding or just relaxing under the quaking Aspen trees while watching the wildlife make there way across the mountain.

Don't forget to bring the camera along to capture the beauty that the Nevada Wilderness has to offer.

At day's end enjoy a great Dutch oven dinner with all the fixings or the trout you may have caught earlier that day.

After dinner we will sit around the campfire and tell stories, listen to the bull elk bugle, and enjoy the stars above and let Mother Nature bring your day to an end with peace and tranquility.

After a peaceful sleep, you will wake up to the smells of fresh brewed coffee and fried bacon. After breakfast we start the adventure again.

Imagine you've planned the hunting trip of a lifetime to a northern state, and when you arrive the weather is much colder than you expect, and has a much different effect on you than you thought. All the will power in the world won't help. If you have the right cold-weather gear, you'll be in good shape. But if you're not prepared that trip of a lifetime will have to be cut short.

There is a definite sense of pride that comes from braving severe elements and coming away with a successful hunt. But the challenge of bowhunting increases substantially. First of all, you have to stay warm, and secondly, you can't let the cold-weather gear to interfere with a good shot when the opportunity arises.

Anyone can stay comfortable in cold weather with some planning and preparation, paying heed to the old advice about dressing in layers. Be aware, however, that walking long distances helps the body generate heat as blood flows to the extremities. Wearing all layers while moving may very well generate too much heat; taking off some layers and carrying these items in your pack until you arrive at your hunting spot may prove wise.

The First Layer

Good long underwear is the first layer. Take advantage of advances in fabric technology with the warmest long underwear made of polypropylene. (Polypropylene is a type of plastic, but of course, when used in clothing, it's modified from its use in water bottles.) Under Armour, Patagonia, and other clothing manufacturers use this material in long underwear because it provides good insulation and draws moisture away from the skin.

The Second Layer

A fleece sweater and woven wool pants comprise a good second layer. The fleece sweater should be made of fiber pile to help keep sweat away from your body. Polartec, for example, provides good quality fleece sweaters. Wool pants are ideal for very low temperatures or windy conditions.

The Third Layer

The third and outermost layer should be camouflage, insulated coveralls. A hood on the coveralls provides an important layer of insulation for your head; a good percentage of body heat escapes from the head. Consider King of the Mountain's quality coveralls.

Essential Accessories

With the torso, arms, and legs properly clothed, you can turn your attention to your feet, hands, and head. Gloves and mittens could be a hindrance to accurate shooting if you're unaccustomed to them. Mittens with the flip-open fingertips will allow you to have your hands free when taking the shot.

Also essential is a wool hat or balaclava type headwear to keep your ears and nose warm. It's possible to stay warm for long periods even on the coldest of days with a proper hat.

Finally, ensure you have good socks and boots. Boots designed specifically for cold weather that feature Thinsulate material are recommended.

As you prepare for the winter hunting season, don't overlook realistic target practice in the summer. All the additional clothing required to stay warm in harsher conditions can affect your accuracy. Be sure that the first shot you take with your cold-weather gear on isn't on the hunting trip you've been planning for months.

Hunting in sub-zero temperatures is not for the faint of heart, but with a little preparation, you will be able to deal with whatever type of weather you encounter.

The Challenge of Judging Distance

Here's a multiple choice pop quiz for you.

1. If you dropped a bowling ball and a marble from the same height, which would land first?

1. The bowling ball
2. The marble
3. They would land at the same time
4. It's unpredictable

2. If you fired a rifle at shoulder height, parallel to the ground, and dropped a bullet from shoulder height at the same instant, which would land first?

1. The bullet that you dropped
2. The bullet that was fired
3. They would land at the same time
4. It's unpredictable

You might be surprised that the answer to both questions is "3." The reason that the bowling ball and the marble fall at the same rate is because the weight of the object doesn't make an object fall faster. Even a feather would fall at the same speed as a bowling ball if it weren't for the air resistance. For the second question, the speed at which the fired bullet falls to the ground is unaffected by its horizontal speed. The fired bullet and the dropped bullet would fall to the ground at the same exact time.

Understanding these basic truths from physics will help you understand why judging distance is so critical in archery. Let's say your bow fires an arrow at 400 feet per second, and your rifle has a muzzle velocity of 2,500 feet per second. If you fired both the rifle and the bow horizontally, from shoulder height, the arrow and the bullet will land at the same time. However, the bullet will have traveled more than six times as far before it hits the ground. If you have a target 50 yards away, it would take the bullet 0.06 seconds to get to the target, but it would take the arrow almost 0.4 seconds to travel that distance. Gravity has more time to affect the arrow, and in this example, the arrow would have fallen more than two feet over the course of 50 yards.

So the whole issue of judging distance arises because the dramatic effect gravity has on an arrow (and a bullet over longer distances). Many neophyte bow hunters don't realize how important the skill of judging distance is until they experience a heartbreaking miss for themselves. Considering the time, money and effort we put in to get the opportunity to go hunting, it only makes sense to take some time to learn how to properly judge distance before heading out on the hunting trip.

There are several methods for judging distance, but the secret is that they all require practice. One method is to measure the distance to surrounding trees, boulders or other landmarks. Sometimes it's beneficial to provide your own landmarks, such as decoys, or mark branches with ribbons at certain distances. So if an animal wanders in between your ten yard marker and the boulder you know is twenty yards away, you'll be able to accurately determine the distance.

Subtending is a method that everyone will have to personalize for their own use. It involves comparing the size of the animal with something that is readily available for comparison, such as the sights on your bow, or your fingers. For example if you use fixed pins for the sights on your bow, you can use them to determine distance. If your sight pins are set to 5/8 inch, that will mean that the typical-sized white-tail deer will fit perfectly between your sights at twenty yards away. At forty yards away, the same deer would appear to be half the size. If you consistently hunt the same game, this could be a very good way to quickly determine the distance to the target.

Yet another tactic that is popular among competitive archers is to memorize what a certain distance looks like in various conditions, such as ten or twenty yards, and then envision how many of those steps would be required to reach the target. For instance, if your distance is ten yards, and you know that two steps of that distance will put you two yards beyond the target, you know that the target is 18 yards away.

Whatever method you use to judge distance, it's important that you practice it regularly. There's nothing more disappointing than missing the target by inches because you're a few yards off on your distance estimate.
