Wyoming hunting can be the best on earth with the abundance of Elk, Mule Deer, Whitetail Deer, Antelope, Merriam's Turkey, Mountain Lion and Black Bear. The only thing that is even better is to be hunting private land with an outfitter that has, "tagged out" or had his hunters enough opportunities that the all harvested the animal they were after.

Additionally to have an outfitter/guide combination that provide the most important piece, the guidance on the land and the after season and before season protection of the animals on the land so they are there when you are there.

As far as meals and lodging he can provide it with a separate cost or you are free to stay at the motel of your choice, and meals in town. You have been putting a roof over your head and feeding yourself you don't need an outfitter to do that except for the ease of logistics.

The down side is that he manages his land and hunts it lightly every year so that the trophies continue to be provided and with his long time knowledge of the land he knows where to find them.

His hunts have a discounted option to get you the best price and available and even combination Hunts as Deer & Antelope, Spring Bear with Turkey, or mix the elk with deer or antelope. Note that Wyoming is one of the few states that allow hunting bears over bait, which is the most successful way to hunt bear anywhere. Spring is better because they are coming out of hibernating and natural food availability is at a minimum that early in the year, We even can pair that up with a prized Merriam's turkey one of the more difficult turkeys for the "Grand Slammer" to add to his collection.

Turkey hunting is better in the morning and bear hunting is better in the afternoon, along a great combination. In the fall bears have more food sources available so it can be more difficult but it can be added to a deer, elk or antelope hunt because in the fall bears are eating 20 hours per day preparing for the winter hibernation.

Our hunts take place on private ranches and some public land from the Big Horn Mountains and the world famous Powder River, to the Medicine Bow and Medicine Bow River. These are premium acres to hunt and being on private property in those areas just add to the enjoyment of the trip and the size of the animals taken on the trip. We have some areas that require more points to draw that even have a higher caliber of animals, besides the ones you can draw with zero preference points.

We offer a first class hunting operation, focusing on hunting hard and having a good time, experiencing the true West. We can customize your hunt to take advantage of your time and money. We offer both fully catered hunts and also a hunt where you take care of your own food and lodging. You may also bring your R.V. Our guides are seasoned and everyone here works hard for you. Book your hunt today and come experience Wyoming, like no place on earth.

Success level

Very, very few outfitters can boast about filling all of the hunter's licenses in a season, it is quite an accomplishment. In our case we don't boast we just state, "We have provided 100% of our hunters with enough opportunities that they were able to fill their license." This is a positive statement not defining the wide range of shooting skills that the hunters arrive with to participate in the hunt. We are just stating some hunters need more opportunities than other to be successful in filling their license.

Booking a hunt with us requires a 50% deposit for the hunt. The final 50% isn't due until 45 days before your hunt.

We will assist you in acquiring your required hunting license from the state of Wyoming. Application dates deadlines for elk are February 4th but for deer and antelope the deadline isn't until May 31st.

We have had 100% success in drawing tags in the past. If for some reason you do not draw, your deposit will be refunded or held over to the next year. After tags are drawn, deposits are non-refundable. The balance of your hunt cost will be due by September 1st. Payment methods accepted are cash, check, credit card or money order.

Many years there are leftover tags to fall back on but there is never a guarantee that there will be any leftover.

Once you fill your tags, your game is transported to a local meat locker for processing. Taxidermy arrangements can be made thru us at your request.
